OPINION

Appellant appeals her conviction in Municipal Court for not having her vehicle validly registered. A fine of $45.00 was assessed.

The citation which Appellant received reflects that she was cited for a dealer's plate violation, and Appellant has included a copy of the dealer's temporary tag which was attached to the vehicle. (see attached)

Section 502.404 (b), Tex. Trans. Code, indicates that a person commits an offense if they operate a passenger car that does not properly display the registration insignia showing that the license plates have been validated for that period. However, Subsection (d) of that same Code Section states that Subsections (a) and (b) do not apply to a dealer operating a vehicle as provided by law.

Therefore, a vehicle being properly operated with dealer's tag need not be registered.

Further, there was no allegation that Appellant was operating the vehicle with dealer's tags outside the permitted uses of doing so as outlined in Section 503.062, Tex. Trans. Code or for personal use as prohibited by Section 503.068, Tex. Trans. Code.

The Trial Courts are also reminded of this Court's holding in Silva vs. State, 97-MCA-2420 holding that a vehicle being conveyed with a valid dealer's plate is also exempt from inspection requirements of Chapter 548, Tex. Trans. Code.

Consequently, since this vehicle evidently was displaying dealer's plates, it need not be registered nor inspected, and the Court's finding to the contrary was error, and therefore, the judgment of that Trial Court is hereby reversed and rendered.
